In the foreground, (right), the gentleman in the center is the late Senator Samuel Lewis Ferguson of Appomattox; can any of you readers identify the gentlemen on either side of Ferguson? Father Darkleaf

By Calvin Robinson

Recent rains pulled the trigger and now everything outdoors is growing, growing, growing. Even in my garden. Brought in the first daylily bloom Sunday, the bloom six and a half inches wide. Three more Monday, and now they will be plentiful.

Seems that most everyone in and around Appomattox is busy. It is the busiest time of the year for those associated with schools. Those with jobs are trying harder, so as to keep them. Those without jobs are looking and hoping. Busy time down on the farm. Churches have Bible Schools added to the program. Business places strive mightily to meet competition. Ah yes, grass tries to outgrow weeds, rose bushes are envious of each other and birds fly full speed ahead Spring is in a hurry because Summer is around the corner. I checked my copy of The Guinness Book of World Records but could not find the record for morning glories per square foot of garden space. Like the Lakers and 76'ers, they have spirit and won't give up. Anyway, it is a grand time of the year.

Sorry to read of the death of Mr. Willard T. Paulette, 69, of Richmond. An Appomattox County native, he achieved tremendous business success, in church and civic affairs as well as in business. Was chairman of the board of Paulette Truck Sales and Service Inc.

Mrs. A. A. Babcock, of Oakleigh Ave., was very proud when I saw her in a store one day last week. Had gotten three ripe tomatoes from her garden! Congratulations.

• • •

Had a telephone conversation with Bro. Roy D. Hopkins, of N. Oakleigh Ave., and found that he formerly lived at famed Chincoteague, on Virginia's Eastern Shore. Found that we had similar memories of names, places and events. Proud to have Mr. Hopkins and family in Appomattox.

Of all things! Was browsing around in my basement and found an old ukulele. Remember the Uke? Such stars as Arthur Godfrey made it rank high in popularity.

• • •

Whatever happened to scarecrows? (No puns, please). Some years ago I asked that question and a reader from near Rustburg sent me a picture of the one he had in his garden to keep crows, etc. away. Have not seen a scarecrow in recent years. Hope I will not need one.

Sunday was June 6 and June 6 was the anniversary of D-Day, when our service men stormed the shores of France, Omaha Beach in Normandy, to set up the final victory in World War II. Area soldiers were in the assault and I knew at least two who gave their lives. May we never forget those who helped to make this nation great and let us pray that ways may be found to prevent wars if we can, but win them if we must.

Thanks for reading and seeya around.

'Year in schools' is reviewed

School session 1981-82 will soon be history. Reflection upon the year reveals success in many areas.

PARENT PARTICIPATION

Parent participation in the school system continues to increase. This has been an active year for P.T.A.'s, committees, volunteers, and conferences.

Because of active participation, parents have become aware of the objectives of the schools, the instructional program, needs of the schools and needs of students. This knowledge has enabled parents to work more effectively with the schools and to have a better understanding of the emotional, physical and intellectual development of their children.

Parents have demonstrated that they are interested in the educational progress of their children. There has been excellent cooperation between parents and schools. This cooperation has resulted in more rewarding experiences for students.

INSTRUCTION

The foundation of a school system is its instructional program. During this session teachers have provided comprehensive instruction and learning opportunities. Appropriate learning standards have been established, and students have been required to meet these standards.

Emphasis has been placed upon students mastering basic learning skills and advancing beyond "the basics" to the maximum levels of their abilities. Students with special needs have been served adequately; the more capable students have been challenged through supplementary and enrichment activities and students at the high school level have been preparing for entry into the job market or further education upon graduation.

DISCIPLINE

No institution can be successful unless those participating live by high standards of conduct. In a school system this applies to students and employees.

As in previous years, strict standards of discipline have been implemented in all of the schools. Employees are aware of the expectations of, the school board. Students are aware of the requirements of the schools relative to conduct. A very systematic plan is followed in each school to assure that the standards are met.

When students fail to measure up to the conduct standards established for the system, initial steps are taken at the school level to correct the problem. If the problem is not corrected parents are involved. With parent involvement, most discipline problems are resolved. For those that are not corrected, other agencies are involved. Depending upon the severity of the problem, the school board will take appropriate action which may be removal of the student from school attendance.

Appomattox County should be proud of the conduct of its young people. Most of the students are well disciplined and are serious about getting the most from their educational opportunities. This is due to the support and concern of parents, the stable home environments in which many students live, and the general standards of conduct expected of persons who live in Appomattox County.

MANAGEMENT

This school system provides excellent opportunities for its youth with reasonable expenditures. The system is efficiently and effectively operated. More opportunities are offered to students in this division than in many surrounding areas and the average expenditure per pupil is lower. This efficiency has enabled to governing body to support reasonable increases in salaries for school board employees and at the same time maintain a reasonable tax rate. In other words, the system is managed to get maximum returns for dollars invested.

LEADERSHIP

An organization is dependent upon its leaders. Their vision, values, goals, integrity and trustworthiness set the pace for others. Members of the Board of Supervisors and the School Board have given excellent direction to the progress which has been experienced in this county during the past. The record of accomplishments attest to this fact.

The principal is the key person to the operation of each school. Operating under the umbrella of the Appomattox County School Board, the schools of Appomattox County have been guided exceptionally well during the past year. Principals have given leadership to quality programs for the students. They have given many hours to assure that activities were planned and implemented well. They have worked to help the youth of this county develop physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually.

From kindergarten through grade twelve, students in this division participate in an organized, sequential learning program. The opportunities for success are there. It is the responsibility of parents and school employees to continue to give the necessary guidance to help youth take advantage of the opportunities provided for them.

The school system of Appomattox County will continue to experience success as parents, employees and students work together. With the help of parents, the foundation for continued progress has been established. Needs will continue to be identified and plans will continue to be revised to achieve those goals which are mutually agreed upon as being essential for this county.

Graduation issue inside

Inside this week's issue of the Times-Virginian, readers will find a special supplement prepared in honor of the graduating class of 1982 at Appomattox County High School.

The tabloid section is designed as a keepsake for the graduates and their friends and relatives.

Included in the supplement are individual photos of the graduates, as well as information relative to awards, scholarships, and post-graduation plans.

Baldwin completes specialized training

Ricky Baldwin

R. W. "Ricky" Baldwin, investigator with the Appomattox Sheriff's Department has just completed two months training at the Virginia Forensic Science Academy held in Richmond, Virginia from February 22 through April 30.

At the academy Baldwin studied collection, preservation and recognition of physical evidence.

Investigator Baldwin successfully mastered all the subjects studied at the academy such as, Narcotics and Other Illegal Drugs, Crime Scene Photography, Locks, Safes and Burglary Techniques, Bomb Scene Search, Fingerprints, and Trace Evidence.

The academy student had to demonstrate his proficiency in all subject areas by successfully completing comprehensive written examinations as well as detailed work product examinations. The final written examination generally requires three to four hours to complete, and the final work product exam exercise requires the student to completely process a Mock Crime Scene, submit the evidence, and defend his collection technique.

Before anyone can attend this school, there is a pre-screening test given to every individual and a person has to be accepted into the Academy after passing the given test.

Lions Club to meet

The Appomattox Lions Club will meet on Thursday, June 10 at 6:45 at the John Mosby Inn Restaurant.

Jim Nolen of Jim Nolen Associates will be the guest speaker.

All members are urged to attend.

THE MOTHER OF THIS BABY DEER died, but the fawn survived when the mother was struck by an automobile on Route 26 in Appomattox County recently. The deer was born moments after the mother was struck by the car. Appomattox County Game Warden Charles Terrence took the animal to the state game farm in Cumberland County, where it will be cared for until it is old enough to fend for itself, when it will be released into the wilds.
